The group was founded in June 1988 (date of the debut album) by its frontman, then young singer and 23-year-old student Mladen Vidović.^[2] The group had seven members, teenagers, upon its foundation.^[2] Nemoguće vruće is characterized by not having usual affluence of well known "Sarajevo pop-rock school" in their music and lyrics i.e. folk elements are not present;^[2] their music is also somewhat "sweet pop".^[3]

Zenica group has been active since 1986 until 1990s when they disbanded due to Bosnian War.^[1] On 16 April 2011, group members reunited (after 23 years of pause) in Zenica for a return concert – location of the performance was restaurant "Tapas"^[4] (former "Kasina");^[1] on 25 November (BiH Statehood Day) 2011, they reunited for a return concert in Sarajevo – location of the performance was club "Cinemas-Sloga".^[3]

On 21 March 2015 Nemoguće vruće held a concert in Arena Zenica, as a part of 20th International festival "Zenica spring" (RETROMANIA Zenica 2015) that marked 50 years of rock scene.^[5] They performed with other Zenica musicians: Extra 2000, Rima band, The Badmakers, Ze selekcija, Gong and Taxi band.^[5]

On 27 July 2019 Lovrić and his band gave^[6] a 1.5-hour live performance on Zenica city square – as one of many concerts during Zenica summer fest 2019 (third main show of this festival). They performed, among other songs, songs of the band they get sometimes mixed with – Ritam Srca.
